Surviving Suicide: Practical Lessons for Survivors & Professionals

Each year over 30,000 people, in the United States alone, die by suicide, many of them are young people of high school and college age. That is an average of one death by suicide every 16 minutes. Additionally, there is one suicide attempt every minute of every day! How do we deal with the wake of emotion and pain this tragedy leaves behind? How do we help those we identify as survivors? How can we present hope and healing in a therapeutic environment? This program intends to begin answering some of those questions and bring up more that may help stem this tide.

Course Outline

- Rethinking suicide terminology and defining our terms
- Examining who is at risk, today
- Warning signs of those in crisis
- Working with survivors, both clients and families

About the presenter:

Philip M. Martinez, MA, LCPC, has nearly twenty years of experience working with individuals suffering from addiction, substance abuse and those surviving suicide.

Philip currently works at Wellspring Clinical Associates in Lisle and enjoys helping those who are hurting to recognize that change is possible.
